

WT still in race For A & M clinic

West Texas State University was back in the running as the site for a Texas A&M diagnostic clinic at week end as the possibility that Amarillo Area Foundation would refuse to have it located at Amarillo Medical Center.

F. V. Wallace, foundation executive director, said location of the clinic at the medical center is "problematical." He said there is a question as to whether such a clinic would meet the dedication requirement which stipulates health usage as a prime factor.

He said a foundation committee will travel to A&M and to Richardson to look over clinics and would report back to the foundation board Sept. 10.

The clinic would be administered by A&M.

Dr. Charles Smallwood, dean of the school of agriculture at West Texas State University, said he feels that WTSU still has a chance but it will be difficult.

Dr. Smallwood said some way must be found to overcome objections within the A&M administration to putting the clinic on the WTSU campus.

Dr. William Sippel, chairman of the A&M site committee, said the clinic location will be back in the hands of the A&M board if Amarillo Area Foundation turns it down for the medical center.

Dr. Sippel is director of veterinarian diagnostic laboratories at A&M.

Possible sites, other than the medical center and WTSU, include the TSTI campus and the Bushland experiment station.

Buff games to have Open-seating policy

An open seating policy for West Texas State University students within their area will go into effect Sept. 8 when the Buffaloes open their football season in Frank Kimbrough Memorial Stadium against Drake.

Students have been required in the past to pick up reserved seats prior to the game, but this new policy will allow the students to sit in unreserved seats within the student section.

No tickets will be picked up prior to the game, but will be given at the games. Students will present their activity cards and student identification cards at the game and those cards will entitle each student to an unreserved seat.

Students sit on the west side of the stadium, below the cross walk in sections A, B, C, D, E, F, and G.

Special "date" tickets will be available for guests of students for $2. Each student has the right to buy only one "date" ticket per game.

The new policy in tickets will allow students to sit with friends and other groups, as long as the students arrive at the same time to pick up their tickets at the special ticket booths on the stadium's west side, at both the north and south ends.

The Student Leadership Conference voted earlier this week to change the policy, starting with the 1973 football season.

Season football tickets will remain on sale at the West Texas State University ticket office through Friday. Season tickets are $30 for chair seats, although there are less than 60 of those remaining, and $24 for bench seats. For the six home games, season tickets allow fans to save $1 per game on each ticket over the regular purchase price.

Athletic business manager Wayne Ray said Saturday there were more than 4,400 season tickets sold this year. That breaks the all-time pre-season sale on tickets set last year at 4,104.

The Buffaloes have a pair of promotions set for the opening game against Drake and it is hoped that one of them will turn into a habit.

The 7:30 p.m. game Saturday will be "Maroon Night" and all fans are being encouraged to wear something to the game of that color.

Should the idea of wearing maroon to West Texas State University football games catch on, it is hoped that it will follow through into the basketball season.

It will also be Affiliated Foods night for the Buffaloes. The food chain and 60 of its stores in the Panhandle area combined with West Texas State for a ticket promotion for the opening game.

Fans are able to obtain a $1 coupon, good for a $5 reserved seat, with each $3 purchase at any of the stores which are taking part in the promotion.

Math prof Wills fund To WTSU

Miss Edna Graham, mathematics professor at West Texas State University for 33 years, has bequeathed $52,589.34 to the institution, President Lloyd I. Watkins said today.

"I can think of no more fitting memorial to this fine professor," Dr. Watkins said. "She spent her lifetime helping students at West Texas State University, and her bequest will continue to help them in future years. We are deeply grateful."

Miss Graham, who retired from WTSU in 1952 after a distinguished career, died last Jan. 23 at a nursing home in Waco. She was 91.

Virgil Henson, financial vice president, said provisions of Miss Graham's will stated the amount be divided equally between the Edna Graham Scholarship Fund for outstanding mathematics majors and the Edna Graham Division of The Opportunity Plan, Inc. (OPI).

"Proceeds from the invested capital should net approximately $20,000 for use during the fall of 1974," Henson said.

"This generous contribution by Miss Graham was in keeping with her character and interest in scholarship, especially scholarship in mathematics," said Dr. H. L. Cook, mathematics department chairman.

Nineteen math students have benefitted from the scholarship fund since its creation in 1952 by her former students, Cook said.

The Edna Graham Division of the OPI was established last year by her.

"The Opportunity Plan has already been able to finance four students in school, beginning

4-H Adult Forum Meets Sept. 10-12

A tri-state adult leader forum featuring the national 4-H director for teen activities from Washington, D.C., and other noted speakers is set for Sept. 10-12.

Announcement of the event comes from J. L. Rowland, chairman of the District 1 Adult Leader Forum Planning Committee.

The annual gathering is designed to bring new ideas for working with 4-H youths to adult leaders. More than 100 people are expected, and invitations have gone out to leaders in neighboring counties of New Mexico and Oklahoma, says Rowland.

Featured in the event are Dr. Hope Daugherty of Washington, D.C., speaking on "Programming for Teens," and Dr. Donald Stormer, state 4-H leader from College Station, addressing the group on the topic of "Design for Discovery," a concept for teens.

Also, Joe Rothe, assistant director and state agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at College Station, speaking on "The Challenge to Adults," the Honorable Carl Perryman, judge of Potter County, discussing "When Adults Don't Work With Teens," and Howard W. Ladewig, Extension area resource development specialist, whose address is on "4-H and the Community."

Buff lake meet Slated thursday

Interested citizens pulling for the survival of Buffalo Lake are hoping that a public meeting here Thursday may turn up solid proposals for keeping the lake alive.

Several Randall County citizens have organized the town hall session, which is scheduled at 8 p.m. in the County Courthouse.

The decision to hold the meeting came after a wide response from Panhandle citizens following the announcement of the federal government's intention to close the lake area, said Jack Brandt, president of the Umbarger Community Association.

The lake's troubles began in the 1960's, when run-off from nearby feedlots flowed into its waters. A long drought added to the devastation, and both drought and pollution were prime factors in getting the lake placed on the "Most Polluted Lakes in Texas" list.

A clean-up program undertaken brought some hope for the lake's survival, but hopes were dashed this summer, when the fish population of Buffalo was exterminated due to lack of oxygen.

First on the list of questions to be put to citizens attending the meeting will be whether or not enough interest exists in the community to justify a full-scale renovation program.

Avenues for financing the project will also be discussed — including the possibility of state assumption of some of the financial burden connected with the lake.

Another proposal by County Judge Woody Pond — that of county financing of recreational aspects of the lake — will also be studied at the meeting.

If enough interest is shown through attendance at the session, said Judge Pond, the group is also expected to discuss ways of getting more water into the lake.

Graham Math Scholarship recipients, presented to the department by Buff Morris from OPI.

Court says no road care

Randall County commissioners in a called meeting Thursday discussed a proposed budget of $1,199,635, allocated $100,000 in revenue sharing funds to construction and refused to accept for county maintenance roads in McCormick Estates.

Estimated budget for the current year is $1,152,735. County Auditor Betty Hodges said there is no drastic hikes in spending figured in the new budget except for some $11,000 for computer services for the tax office.

The proposed budget also allows for a 5.5 percent increase in county salaries. Tax assessor-collector Audrey Bruse estimates a growth in the county tax base of 3.31 percent in the past year.

Final acceptance of the budget is expected Sept. 10 with public hearing slated for Sept. 17.

The court allocated $100,314 in expected federal money to construction. Some $40,000 in revenue sharing funds already have been received. This also has been allocated to construction.

Horace Dwight and J. C. Hatfield appeared on behalf of McCormick Estates and were told that roads in that subdivision would not be accepted for county maintenance mostly because there is not enough projected road use in the area.

Commissioner Paul Lindsey pointed out that roads deteriorate when not in use. He also noted that a road in the same general area built by the same developer is in a state of degeneration because it has not been used enough.

He produced pictures showing weeds growing up through asphalt pavement.

The developer was told to complete roads in the subdivision to county specification and they might be accepted for maintenance at a later date. Commissioners emphasized that this is not a guarantee because county policy in such matters is in the process of being changed.

Engineer Bill McMorris offer to provide specifications for county road construction, drainage and subdivision requirements for a fee of $1,040 was accepted.

Commissioners authorized County Judge Woody Pond, Sheriff Cliff Longest and District Attorney George Dowlen to attend a conference in Austin.

Board member Resigns post

Don Dickerson has resigned from the Randall County School Board.

He is moving to Potter County. Dickerson was appointed in May to represent Precinct 1 on the board when Mrs. K. Burt Washington moved out of the precinct.

Dickerson's resignation came Thursday at a meeting of the board at which a budget of $5,256.28 was approved.

WTSU enrollment is up After three-year decline

For the first time in three years, West Texas State University's fall enrollment has shown an increase in students over the previous year.

6,504 students registered Friday and Saturday at the University, the figure showing an increase from last fall's enrollment count of 6,415.

Late registration will continue through next Saturday at the University.

Out of the 6,504 total, 173 persons were registered for resident off-campus courses. The off-campus program was initiated last spring at the University, with extension centers established at 11 locations in the Panhandle.

Dr. Donald Cates, dean of admissions and registrar at WTSU, said he was especially encouraged by the increase of 89 students "in light of the fact that the population of our principal feeder high schools and feeder cities in the Panhandle has been decreasing in recent years."

Dr. James P. Cornette, university chancellor, said that the first indication of an upturn in enrollment came last spring when the school had a smaller enrollment decline between the fall and spring semester than it had experienced in the previous two years.

Officials were also apprised of a possible shift in the enrollment picture this summer, when enrollment in summer school sessions increased 5 per cent over the previous sessions.

Dr. Cates said that the fall upswing indicates a positive response to the summer pre-enrollment and orientation program for beginning freshmen over the past summer.

Other factors cited as a reason for the increase were the improved counseling procedures by members of the university faculty, and an intensified recruitment campaign undertaken last year.

Dr. Cates also said that the Panhandle's record wheat crop may have influenced many to enroll this year who might otherwise have stayed out of college this year.

As of news time Saturday, a breakdown of enrollment figures was not available. Over the past three years, the most critical area of declining enrollment has been that of part-time and evening students.

Cates said that since enrollment at the university reached a peak of nearly 8,000 in 1969, beginning freshman enrollment has continued to decline until this year.

In addition to attempts to draw beginning freshmen to the university, Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins, new WTSU president, this week announced an on-campus "recruitment" geared to fighting the school's discouraging "attrition" rate of students between the freshman and sophomore years.

In a speech to faculty members on Tuesday, Dr. Watkins said that the University is losing students between their first and second years in college for reasons other than academic suspension.

Classes begin Monday at the university and continue through Dec. 20 when the fall term ends. School will be out for Thanksgiving recess Nov. 21-24.

Ends 31-Year WTSU Career

Typing Head Retires

When she began typing at West Texas State University 31 years ago, Mrs. Olivia Oldham would have made any employer a darn good secretary.

But that one-to-one relationship between boss and secretary wasn't the thing for Mrs. Oldham, who preferred to render her 80-words-a-minute typing skills to the cause of higher education.

Mrs. Oldham retired Friday as WTSU's typing service director. Assuming the post in her place will be Mary Whitten, who has been an assistant to the retiring director for several years.

Mrs. Oldham was employed by the University in February, 1942. At that time typing services were provided by the bookstore, which was located in a room in the Old Administration Building. Later, the typing service became so popular among faculty and students that it became a separate department when the bookstore was moved to the Student Union Building, where it is now located.

Reflecting over her long career as a typist, Mrs. Oldham said that her work in providing students and professors with typed material has offered her far more variety and enrichment than if she would have taken the more-travelled route of office secretary.

At a retirement party for Mrs. Oldham on Thursday, the typist announced that she would still pursue her lifelong career at home. According to Mrs. Oldham, several students have been given her name and address for later typing of term papers and research reports.

Working in the basement of the Old Ad Building of WTSU, Mrs. Oldham said she has always taken an interest in what's been happening on the campus overhead. News of campus goings-on come to her through daily faculty bulletins, which she types, as well as via the school newspaper, The Prairie, which she mails out each week to off-campus subscribers.

For the past four years, Mrs. Oldham and Miss Whitten have been responsible for all typing work in the department. Previously, about a dozen part-time student workers were employed in the office. It was found, however, that two full-time professional typists could handle the work as quickly and efficiently as could a team of part-time student helpers.

Mrs. Oldham said that throughout her career at WTSU, she has "worked overtime," either burning the midnight oil in her office, or taking large stacks of papers home with her in the evening.

Every year brings its plethora of students with last minute papers to type, and, insofar as possible, Mrs. Oldham has tried to lend a helping hand. In some cases, papers have been typed up for procrastinating students up to 30 minutes before professors take up the assignments in class.

"Oh, we've had our share of hard luck stories," Mrs. Oldham laughed, "and whether or not we can help just depends on how much other work we have to do and how much typing needs to be done."

Asked whether she took an interest in reading the papers of students and professors, Mrs. Oldham gave an emphatic "Oh, no, a good typist can't slow down to catch the meaning of what she's typing."

"But there was one paper, I remember... it was in story form. The woman was writing a fictional tale about a little boy. I read that as I went along. But, of course, that is seldom done by people in our profession," Mrs. Oldham said in a business-like voice.

Our World

Cooperation Reaps Miracles

By ANN BROWN

In our complex society we are prone to forget how very dependent we are on each other. Alone, or fighting our neighbors, we accomplish nothing; working together we can do miracles.

In primitive cultures, food and protection from the elements and their enemies are about all the people strive for or expect. Each family or at least each tribe can supply all their needs.

Not so in modern America. Even the American farmer, the most productive man on earth, is completely dependent on machinery, fuel, fertilizer, insecticide, labor, transportation, processors, legal protection, markets, etc.

The production of those necessities involves thousands of people from factory workers to field hands, and magistrates to marines. We need each other. It takes work to provide even the bare necessities for each person. It always has. Even the primitives in many cultures must work all the daylight hours to provide their meager needs.

Civilization advanced on the reality that a man either did his own work, hired it done, or starved in his own dirt and disorder.

Americans, however, have nurtured a subculture determined to do none of the three. They eat "free" food, wallow in their own garbage, and cry for somebody to kill the rats.

Every person who sits down and contributes nothing to the economy forces another to work twice as hard — or there is a shortage.

The workers have been doubling up for years, but shortages are increasing. And one shortage leads to another.

The beef shortage, for instance, has created a scarcity of other meat supplies as well as a lack of leather for shoes and other by-products.

The gasoline pinch has cut back essential supplies to the petrochemical industry, which has resulted in shortages of everything from polyester products to fertilizer.

Billie Sol Estes aspired to control the world by controlling fertilizer. But no fertilizer at all could wreak more havoc than having a tyrant control it.

The world has always had its lifters and leakers. But there is a limit to the number of leakers one lifter can support. Our shortages are mute evidence our lifters are outnumbered.

Custom harvesting has been a lucrative occupation for more than half a century. Men who have been in the business all their lives are selling or junking their combines because of shortages of labor, fuel, and parts have been bankrupted them.

When farmers are forced to harvest their own grain, it adds to their already backbreaking physical and financial load. When one lifter breaks under the load, other lifters are saddled with more leakers.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce quoted government figures showing food prices rose 34 percent from 1967 to 1973, housing costs went up 32 percent, clothing rose 26 percent. But government went up 62 percent!

We complain about food that costs approximately 15 percent of our incomes, and gives us pleasure and sustenance. What about government that costs some 44 percent for benefits that are increasingly questionable? (It looks as if the women have been boycotting the wrong establishment.)

Inflation is not a hazard in a free economy. Any man who makes excessive profits is soon faced with competitors who are willing to work for less.

But when the government arbitrarily sets wages and prices, and pours more money into circulation than available goods and services merit, inflation is inevitable.

The endless cycle of wage increases ends up by bigger tax bites and higher prices is a treadmill that is wearing us out and getting us nowhere.

It seems that Americans cannot control the government, but we could control ourselves. All we have to do is quit leaning and start lifting.

Meaning of Fraternity Clears Misconception of Greeks

By CAROL YOUNG

There are many misconceptions about the purpose and goals of a fraternity or sorority. Certainly they do have parties and gatherings, but these are a far cry from the chief objectives of the fraternity. A common picture of a sorority girl is one who has the best clothes, the richest Daddy, and is constantly in demand. She is also, not so smart, but she always has a date to every party or football game. The following information should dispel these misconceptions.

The first Greek letter "social" fraternity was founded in 1776 and was named Phi Beta Kappa. To this day, having a Phi Beta Kappa key is a distinct honor that is recognized nationally. The original Phi Beta Kappa men took part in the Committees of Correspondence during the forming of the United States. They felt the need, like the other members on the committee to inform the colonies of the latest news, and to keep them informed. To do this, the Phi Beta Kappa members exchanged letters with each other between the various colonies. Then and now, the term "social" did not mean what many think it does. It referred to society as people in general.

The chief objective of fraternity existence as found in "The Meaning of Fraternity, A View For The Seventies" published by Operation Greek and distributed to fraternal organizations on the West Texas State Campus, is "the social, intellectual, and moral improvement of its members." With "social" meaning "the development of man's potential for good interpersonal relations and mutual aid."

Greek letter social fraternities and sororities are completely an American invention. Greek men and women take pride in this fact, as many higher educational facets were copied from other countries.

Fraternity men were also keenly interested in developing the individuality of each member, so as not to give cause to the thought that all fraternity members should be identical. The fraternity strives to develop the individual within the group situation.

In conjunction with the colleges, the fraternity's role has generally been supplemental. It used to involve public speaking debate, discussion and criticism of literature. Now, the trend for learning in universities is turning towards a more vocational angle. "The Meaning of Fraternity" gives this view on the new trend: "Many fraternity and sorority leaders feel that in this developing educational vacuum, the Greek letter society has an opportunity for usefulness to members which is perhaps the greatest in its history."

However, fraternities and sororities are not left alone to do as they wish completely. Each chapter has an adult advisor who helps counsel the members and keep youthful enthusiasm from going beyond normal bounds. Guidance and counseling are provided for through pledge training and a form of discussion referred to as a bullsession. In pledge training, the pledges are taught the history and background of their chosen sorority or fraternity and instruction and education in the social graces, clothing, liquor, drugs, sex, and language. They do not have mandatory rules for compliance to a rigid standards program. They do have standards, but these try to be within reason, taking into consideration the climate of the times. The bull session may be just what it implies, and then again, may be a truly valuable learning experience for all involved.

The Pledge stage of fraternity and sorority life can be complicated and confusing sometimes. During this time, pledges are learning the history of the organization and a myriad of other things needed. Pledgeship is also a time to realize the meaning of brother or sisterhood for the first time in the fraternity sense. For some this can be a time in their lives that will always be remembered.

Upon completing pledgeship, Shellye Carroll Benefit Motorcycle Race Slated

Shellye Carroll, the 14-year-old Canyon girl robbed of the use of all limbs in a motorcycle accident last March, will be receiving a little help from her cycling friends this month.

The Track and Trail Sports Riders are sponsoring a benefit mixed motorcycle race for Miss Carroll scheduled Sept. 16 at the Amarillo Motorcross Pit, located behind the Tourist Bureau on I-40 East.

The race is scheduled at 1:30 p.m., with practice sessions slated at 10 a.m. that morning. $1,000 in prizes is offered to winners in four different categories. Motorcycle shops donating prizes in merchandise are Larry's Hodaka, Spinning Wheels, Sharp's Honda and Cycle World.

All proceeds will go toward Miss Carroll's hospital expenses. The young cyclist has been in rehabilitation therapy this summer at the Good Samaritan Hospital in Phoenix, Ariz., and is expected to undergo neck surgery this week.

A spokesman said that Miss Carroll may be returning to Canyon late this month. She is expected to enroll for classes at Canyon Junior High School.

Two Canyon Explorers Go On Philmont Trek

Two Canyon girls recently returned from a two week trek on the Philmont Scout Ranch near Cimarron, N.M. Cindy Johnson and Julie McGlasson accompanied nine other girls and their advisor, Miss Candy Burgett on the combined Explorer Post trek.

The plans came about after a year in the making. Cindy started getting ideas last year after her father returned with a group of Boy Scouts. She then discussed it with the area Explorer Post director, and her dreams became reality on Aug. 10, when the group left for the ranch.

The Philmont Scout Ranch is 215 square miles or over 100,000 acres in size. It encompasses a Boy Scout camp with many outlying staff camps.

The girls would hike during the day, find a site and make their camp. Freeze dried food was the basic menu and even included ice cream. Julie described the food as "looking and feeling like styrofoam that melts in your mouth." Some of the staff members of the camp treated the girls to a pancake breakfast one morning and Julie said that "this was a delicacy after the freeze dried food."

One of the only obstacles the girls came upon was the preparation and care needed to keep bears away from their camps. All food and anything that smelled at all had to be put in a "bear bag" and hung between two trees. There was one bear that had been named "Pack the Ripper" because of his love of tearing into a pack to get whatever caught his sniffer and then leaving the pack in shreds. The girls couldn't even brush their teeth before they went to bed, because the bears would smell that.

Some of the other activities they engaged in were pole climbing, horse back riding, rapeling, rock climbing, skeet shooting, target shooting and burro racing. The burro racing ended up being a competition between the girls and some Boy Scouts who were there for a short time. It wasn't as easy as it sounds. First they had to catch the burros, then saddle them, and finally, pull, push and tug them to get them to the finish line. There was a preliminary race held in the afternoon with the main event taking place at night with special lighting to mark the race course. Cindy and Julie both won over the boys. Cindy felt that the burro racing was one of the most fun things they did.

Another accomplishment the girls made was to climb Mt. Baldy. The whole excursion of the climb included 25 miles that they covered in one day.

Another climbing feat was the Tooth of Time that is a landmark on the Old Santa Fe Trail. It is almost all just rock at an 85 degree angle. Cindy said the best way to rock climb was "dig your fingernails in and don't look down." Julie said that "you have to plan your path and then find whatever you can to get a hold on to pull yourself up." Anyone who manages to climb the Tooth of Time is awarded a bull shaped patch and is allowed to wear the patch with the tail extending over the shoulder seam on their jacket. The girls expressed that this was a big honor.

During the actual hiking from one camp to another, the girls covered over 64 miles with everything they took with them in a back pack that weighed an average of 35 lbs. If they happened on a dry camp, (one with no water) they had to carry water in from as far as three miles away over hills and rough terrain.

One of their side trips included a tour of the French Henry Mining Co. and the Aztec Ridge Mine. The French Henry Mining Co. is a museum that they felt was really authentic. The Aztec Ridge was a working mine until a cave in, but this has been roped off for tourist safety.

Julie is a member of an aviation Explorer Post in Amarillo. Cindy is not a member of any particular post, but she is trying to organize a Post in Canyon for those boys and girls who are interested in hiking.

Winn Receives Doctorate
Robert Winn, assistant professor of geology at West Texas State University, was awarded a doctoral degree this summer from Texas Tech University. His dissertation, "Hydrogeology of the Albian Formation of Algeria," was based on his work as a research hydrologist for the International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies in Algeria. In addition to his work in developing water supplies in North Africa, Dr. Winn has worked extensively in irrigation and water conservation in the Panhandle area. A member of the WTSU faculty since 1971, Dr. Winn has worked with water conservation districts in the region, as well as with the Randall County Commissioner's Court in establishing guidelines for bore hole drilling. He is also serving on the environments and natural resources committee, as well as the river basin technical committee of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission. One of his primary concerns while residing in this area, has been research geared to solving what he regards as one of the most important problems facing the Panhandle — the conservation of water. Winn holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Texas Tech University. The geology professor is in his final year at WTSU. He was one of 14 faculty members at the University whose employment was terminated for the 1974-75 year due to the three-year decline in enrollment at the school. ttc52

Leaving this week for a three-year sojourn in England are Mrs. Sharon Warren and her four children. Mrs. Warren will be doing doctoral research that will be taking her to libraries and museums throughout the British nation.

Mrs. Warren, a 1973 summer graduate of West Texas State University, was accepted as a doctoral student at the University of Birmingham. She will be working toward a Ph.D. in English history.

Mrs. Warren currently holds a bachelor's degree in history from WTSU. She was a recipient of the L. F. Sheffy Memorial Scholarship for two years at WT. Her acceptance at Birmingham was on the basis of outstanding academic performance and recommendation from WTSU history professors Elizabeth Davidson and Dr. Darrell Munsell.

Mrs. Warren's two daughters, Teresa, 11, and Lea, 12, will be attending the highly-regarded Acton Reynold School for Girls in Shrewsbury.

One son, Robert, 4, will enter the English public schools upon reaching his fifth birthday this fall. Mrs. Warren said that mandatory age for beginning elementary schools in Britain is age five.

Another son, Christopher, 3, will be under the care of an English "nanny."

Husband Robert Warren will remain in the Panhandle working as an employee with Santa Fe Railroad of Amarillo. Warren will also continue work toward his Master of Business Administration degree at WTSU.

Warren will be sending funds across the ocean to finance his family's British tour.

When she returns to the States in three years, Mrs. Warren hopes to obtain a professional post in an American university.

Both daughters have records of excellent academic performance in the Canyon Public Schools. While in England, they will be studying under a highly-advanced program at the exclusive boarding school.

An expense not reckoned on, said Mrs. Warren, is a detailed wardrobe list required for each girl. The extensive required with the 1973 fall semester, since the donation was given by Miss Graham," said Milton (Buff) Morris, OPI executive vice president.

"The Edna Graham scholarship is given each year as an award to the most outstanding and deserving senior mathematics student," Cook said.

"With these new funds," he added, "the mathematics department may begin awarding increased scholarships to incoming freshmen who display a great talent for math and have financial need."

Cook said that Miss Graham's "influence is still felt when mathematicians gather. She had the ability and the strong will to make good students superior and fair students good."

The Opportunity Plan is a non-profit corporation on the WTSU campus which lends money, without interest, to persons for post-high school education.

Approximately 3,500 students have been helped in the past 20 years with educational loans through the OPI, Morris said.

"We take the kids nobody else wants to take a chance on," Morris said, "and we give them our confidence and supervision in the handling of their time and aptitudes, as well as their money."

Aid from the OPI is available without regard to age, sex, academic rating, family finances, race or marital status, Morris said.

"A student's character and determination are his collateral," he added.

3rd Graders Receive Bibles From Church

The First Methodist Church Elementary 2 Sunday School class members have been presented Bibles in a tradition that is followed each year.

The church gives the class members a Bible to coincide with the beginning of instruction for their age group as to the use of the Bible and how to study it.

For the next three months the class will be studying how to use the Bible under the instruction of Mrs. Myron Dees and Mrs. Merrill Winstead.

Camp Fire Girls To Present 1st Program Sept. 5

An assembly at Canyon Junior High School Sept. 5, at 8 p.m., will begin a membership drive in Canyon for The Camp Fire Girls. Another assembly will be held at Gene Howe Elementary School Sept. 6. All interested parents are invited to attend these assemblies.

Ages for membership include the 1st-12th grades with these divisions: Bluebirds 1st-3rd grade, Adventure 4th-6th grade, Discovery 7th-8th grades, and Horizon Club 10th-12th grades.

Camp Fire Girls would like to expand its membership to include more girls in Canyon. There are several groups already organized, and they have leaders, but more volunteer leaders are needed.

The common maximum number of girls in a group is 12 allowing them more freedom within the groups to participate and work toward the goal of individual development for each girl.

The Camp Fire Girls believe in keeping step with the times and constantly update their programs to achieve this end.

Learning through doing is one of the major philosophies of Camp Fire Girls. They are able to maintain this ideal by using broad guide lines that give the members more independence in their participation.

A girl is eligible for membership at any time she is in the age range of the 1st-12th grades.

For further information, call the Camp Fire Girls office at 373-7922, or go by 2211 Line Ave., Amarillo.

Mrs. Edith Payne (right), coordinator for continuing education in nursing at West Texas State University, explains the new program to two graduate nurses, Mrs. Betty White (left) and Mrs. Jo Neeta Campbell, both of Amarillo. The continuing education program, starting in Amarillo Tuesday, will be extended to central locations in the region at Dumas, Hereford, Memphis and Pampa.

Six RN Courses Offered At WTSU

Six short courses for registered nurses will be offered in Amarillo during September and October by the West Texas State University Department of Nursing.

The continuing education

Going somewhere? Or been? The Canyon News wants to know about it — so do its readers.

programs will be extended to four other Texas Panhandle cities — Dumas, Hereford, Memphis and Pampa, said Mrs. Eunice King, department chairman.

The WTSU program was the outgrowth of a request by representatives of District 2 Texas Nurses Association (TNA) and the Amarillo League for Nursing, Mrs. King said. It will be operated in cooperation with the Amarillo Hospital District.

"The goal of the Texas Nurses Association is to improve health care services by increasing the participation of registered nurses in continuing education," she added.

Mrs. King served on a statewide committee which designed the TNA's program of continuing education to "encourage nurses to pursue learning activities in order to maintain nursing expertise and to acquire the most current knowledge and skills."

Mrs. Edith Payne, coordinator for continuing education in nursing at WTSU, said the first course will start Tuesday (Sept. 4), at the Psychiatric Pavilion, Amarillo. Fee is $30.

The course will deal with "management of patient care" and is designed for nurse working in any health service agency, Mrs. Payne said. The 50-hour class will meet Tuesdays from 4-7 p.m.

On Oct. 1 a course in "nursing audit" will start at the hospital district's Education Center. It will meet Mondays 4-7 p.m.

A course in "endocrine dysfunction problems" will begin Oct. 10 at the center and will meet Wednesdays 4-7 p.m.

Then on Oct. 17 "emergency department nursing," a 100-hour course, will commence at the center. It will convene Wednesdays 7-10 p.m.

The WTSU nursing department also will conduct a workshop on the "problem-oriented medical record" Sept. 12-22 at the Psychiatric Pavilion. Fee is $45.

Mrs. Dolores M. Alford, director of Continuing Education Associates, Dallas, and Dr. Virginia Vollmer, assistant professor at the Southwestern Medical School, Dallas, will serve as faculty for the workshop.

Mrs. Payne said plans for continuing education programs in Dumas, Hereford, Memphis and Pampa are being worked out.

"No nurse will have to travel too far to take advantage of continuing education in nursing," she said. "We expect our biggest problem to be in keeping up with programs the nurses want."

Persons desiring further information on the continuing education programs in nursing should contact Mrs. Payne at West Texas State University, Canyon 79016.

South Pacific Slated

"South Pacific," the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical romance, has been announced as this year's West Texas State University Opera Workshop Production.

Royal Brantley, associate professor of music and director of the Opera Workshop, made the announcement this week.

Production dates are slated Nov. 8-11 and 15-17 in the Branding Iron Theatre.

Auditions are to be announced this week. Any WTSU student is eligible for participation either for non-credit or for credit if enrolled in Music 262.

Rehearsals are scheduled primarily in the evenings, Brantley said.
